PROFILE

I am a graduate with a degree in International Relations. With various international experiences, I was able to get to know different cultures and ways of working. Since I have decided to pursue a career in Europe, I determined to follow my ambition and to challenge working in the tech industry. I recently finished a 9weeks full-stack web development course and have been coding every day to improve my programming skills.

Being a person who has an international perspective, I have proven my teamwork skills in a global environment. Also, being a fast learner and self-disciplined allowed me to motivate myself to develop my coding skills. I am confident that I can generate an added value in your company.

I am seeking a professional environment where I can be proactive, creative, and develop my passion for tech business further.
